What's on display?

The 50th anniversary of the Suntory Foundation for the Arts

Styles of Play: The History of Merrymaking in Art

サントリー芸術財団 50周年
てんらんかい びじゅつ けいふ
展覧会：遊びの流儀 遊楽図の系譜

What do you like to do when you're having fun with your friends? Do you play games or sports? You're not alone: people have been getting together to have fun since before the dawn of history. We know from folding screens from the 16th century to the 18th century that people frolicked in and on the water, enjoyed board games and card games, played music, and danced. Pick up your Adventure Guide Sheet and check all that fun out!

The English-language guide sheet will help you explore the exhibition.

All Day KIDS' MUSEUM!

Tuesday, August 6, 2019

Tsuruta's Merry Space

This is a space that's yours to enjoy. Visit the areas that look interesting, and take part in events.

10:00 - 16:30 Venue : 6th Floor Hall

A Wild Karuta Party!

Why not play with the original Kid's Museum karuta (cards)?

Tsuruta and You and the Four Arts!

The Four Arts—playing the kin (a stringed instrument), Go, calligraphy, and painting—were originally enjoyed in China by super honorable, educated people. Like you! Check these amusements out, and don't forget to take a photograph with Tsuruta, in the photo spot, to remember this day.

Let's Dance! Have a Ball!

Performances at

13:00, 14:30, and 16:00
(each lasting about 20 minutes)

Get together and dance, play the musical instrument you made in the Simple Musical Instrument Workshop on the first floor, and, like the people in the folding screens, have a ball!

Instructor: Toko Ebihara (Artist)

We're a museum for kids
— a place to learn and play!

The galleries may feel a little chilly.
Bringing along a jacket to put on would be a good idea.

Note:

- All programs are conducted in Japanese.
- Participation is limited to kids in elementary and junior high school. Guardians can observe only part of the programs.
- Details are subject to change.
